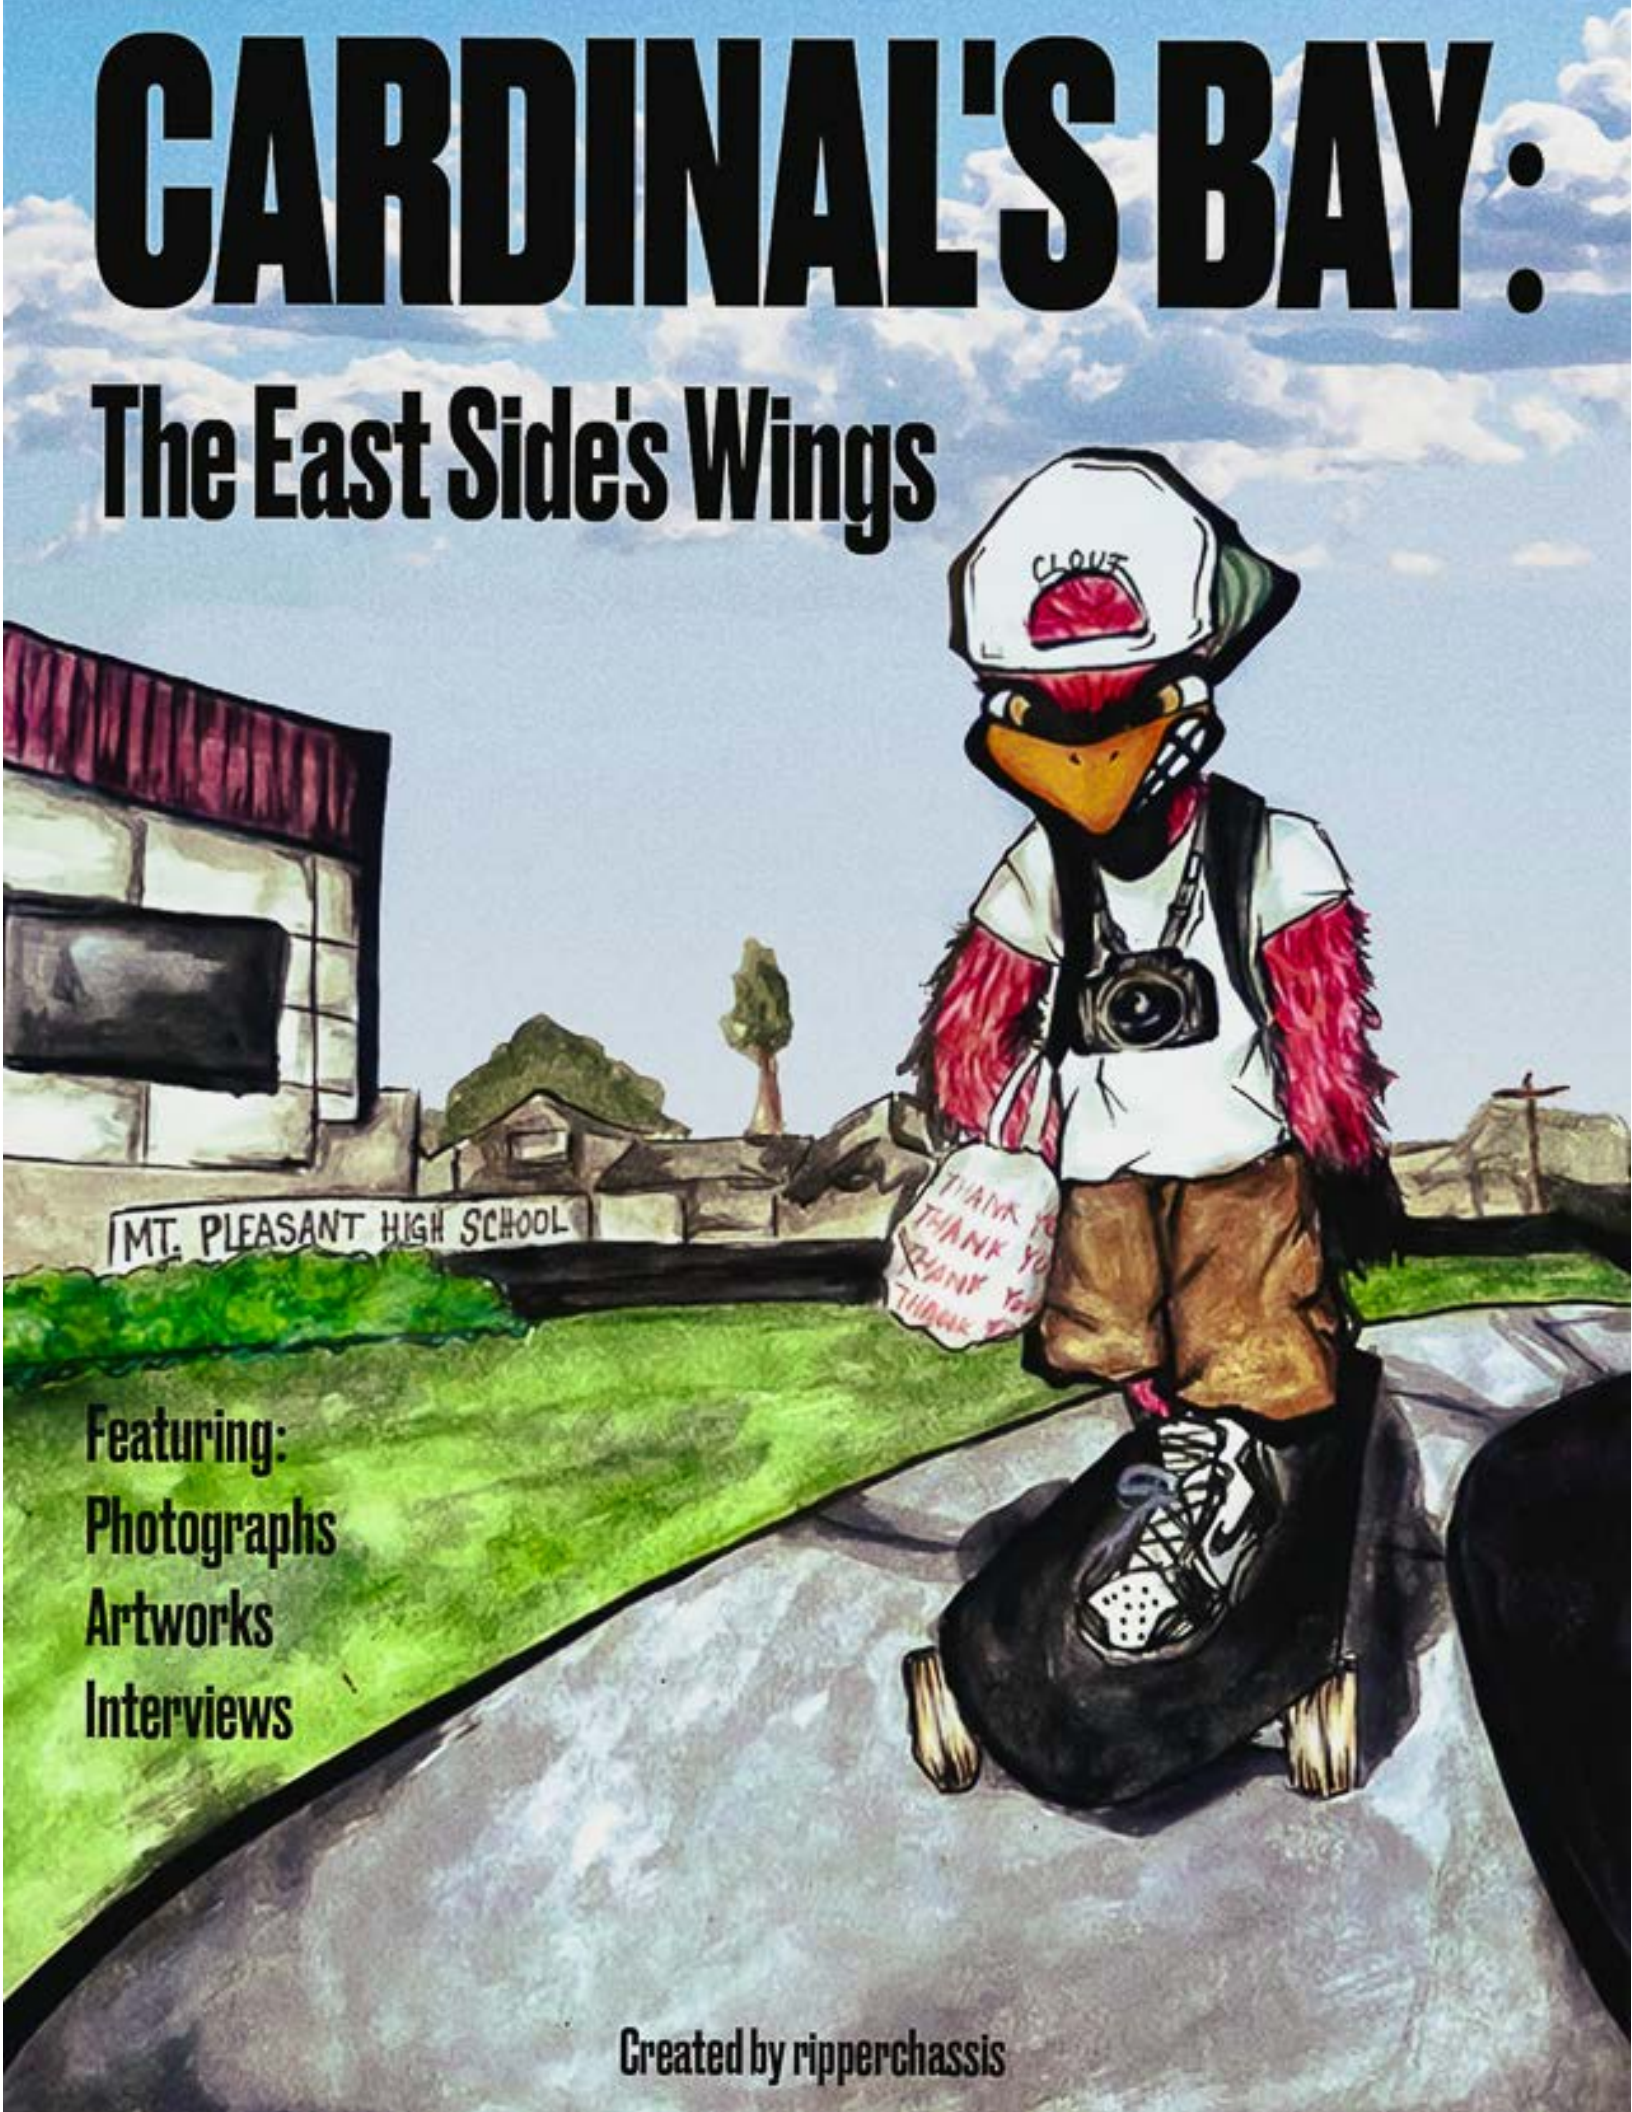
CARDINAL'S BAY:

The East Side's Wings



Featuring:
Photographs
Artworks
Interviews

Created by ripperchassis

I started cruising around plazas and neighborhoods, taking photographs for The San Jose TRIP Magazine---which was my original plan. Mt Pleasant was gonna be a small section that featured the Food Fest and some individuals, but I ended up taking so many for friends and events that I HAD to use them for something... Then during one sleepless camping trip, I came up solution: the CARDINAL'S BAY digital magazine.

CHARLIE TU

NOEY: What's your name? And where are you from?

CHARLIE: My name is Charlie. I live in San Jose.

NOEY: How did you start dancing?

CHARLIE: The first time I saw dancing was when I saw And then I performed and was like, wow, maybe danci really awesome to learn this.

NOEY: Well, when was this? How many years ago?

CHARLIE: This was like when I was ten or eleven, whe when I first saw him. And then I saw the future genera

NOEY: Who are the dancers besides Michael Jackson

CHARLIE: Eventually, I started, like, getting inspired b stuff. But I never really tried it because it's acrobatics.

NOEY: I hear kids mention they don't like the Kpop co aspect, but I wanted to hear your thoughts as a club m

CHARLIE: If anyone said they didn't, of course I respe kind of gross. But in reality, it probably tastes amazing And if you really don't like it, you don't like it.

NOEY: When I first heard about the K-pop dance, I tho in the multicultural rally, I see that you are happy at wh

CHARLIE: The main thing about dancing is you need a doing something else. If you wanna do something and and, have a straight face and say nothing without beir to have fun.

w Michael Jackson's Moon Walk. And I thought that was really cool and I felt that maybe I can learn how to do that too, so I did learn that. ing isn't really that bad. As my life went forward, I saw seeing more dance moves, which looks really cool. And I was like, dang, it'd be en I first saw Michael Jackson? And I'm so sad. He died at 2010, because that's when I was born. So I had to see his past. Billy Jean is tions. So his first one to his latest one, and that's when I was like, dang, I really like his dances. They look really cool. Flashy.

lo you associate yourself with Korean culture?

told me to start dancing because I got on the leaderboard. And I dance well. KAC offered me and i was like sure why not i mean, it's just ut there more as a freshman. Just being able to put your image out there. Know that you can do this, you show that you can have fun. And before, I used to be afraid of performing in public and performing to a lot of people, but ever since I joined multiple clubs, that makes me ally got up the courage. And then I started I started dancing more.

ive at the school right now, but would you do anything outside of it, like a group of people or you join a space?

y low and keep a low profile, but if something did pop up like an event and I get something for doing it, I'd say, why not? I don't see why I ry to do it in public. I don't need to be break dancing all of a sudden.

n that you look up to?

oy small short dances that would be used in many songs. At the same time, I also got interested in acrobatic dancing, dances with flips and I'm not doing that hard concrete. I never had the space in my house to practice it.

mmunity. Has anyone said it straight up, and what would you say to someone who did? You don't seem like you associate with the Korean nember.

ect their opinion, but at least give it try and they would change their mind. It's kind of like food. You see food online, and you know looks g. So before you hate something, never wanna try it, at least take part in something at once related to whatever you're you don't really like.

ought about the K pop stars. I see the videos about them online where people hella make fun of the fans. But when I see you guys dancing hat you're doing. You're not afraid do what you do. And yes, you enjoy, you enjoy dancing. That's the most important thing.

a show that you're having fun. If you're dancing and you look like, oh, I don't wanna do this . Then why you even here? You should be d you enjoy doing it, you gotta make sure you look like you're having fun doing it. It's kind of like our band concerts. We can't just sit there ng energetic.We gotta interact with the audience, be like, "Yeah, you like that? That was good, huh?" That's what you need to do, you need

MAURICIO

NOEY: What's your name? Where are you from?

MAURICIO: My name is Mauricio Heredia, I'm from San Jose, and I go to Mom Pleasant High School.

NOEY: And I heard you played basketball.

MAURICIO: Yeah I do.

NOEY: How does basketball affect your life overall? Does your family help you out? What choices do you make to play the game?

MAURICIO: Well, it's a sacrifice, man, just hard work. Always gotta thank the man from above God, you know, he's helped me with the work. But otherwise, my experience with it has been great. You know, it's my passion to play, you know, I've been play since I was eleven, and ever since I've been putting in the work, that's where I got to how I am. Now, my goal is to one day be in NBA, and if not, well, a firefighter works out too. But the NBA's my goal, that's why varsity basketball is important to me, man, you know, being with the boys, you know. But my family's also helped out, especially my dad, when he trained with me, and my coach as well. He used to coach me when I was little, and then he grew up with me. He's in college now, but he still helps me out whenever he has a time. And I just forever grateful to all those people. That's how I got to how great I am right now.

NOEY: You play outside of Mt Pleasant as well?

MAURICIO: I trained on my gym and everything you know play against pick up games, those always help me out you know. And my dad's always been there, you know. And I used to get mad at him because he'd always be yelling at me at the games, and I'd be pissed off. But because of that, he's helped me because of that, because just, I see how hard he pushed me. He saw the potential I had, and he wanted to bring that out of me. And I'm forever thankful to him for that, you know, always training me, always making sure I do everything right, not half half anything. It's all great.

NOEY: How has hard work effected your plays?

MAURICIO: My signature move is my favorite. Once I worked on that, once I worked on that move, it became automatic. I used to make them only open. But once I put in even more work, I made them contested, especially hitting the weight rooms help me a lot, you know. Because of that, I'm a strong guy, and none of them could take me down there. I'm thankful to my friends, you know, they always, they always support me. I mean, my plays. They also like the drive ins, the threes. I'm a big man who could shoot, you know, not many big men can shoot. But, you know, whatever I'd say to them like, just keep putting in the work. You know, it's always, it's so, so worth it. So you play basketball too, with your dad, with the coach for your whole life, and you have your friends to play with too.

NOEY: How does playing a sport like basketball build the connection in your circle?

MAURICIO: Builds connection, man. You know, basketball isn't just balancing the ball and dribbling, you know, it's about passion, you know. It's a sacrifice. And I think because of that, it's led to many people being successful, you know, I wanna be one of those people, especially with the connections. You know. That's why whenever I'm excited, whenever there's a pickup game, you know, they text me. "Yo Mauricio come, lets do a pickup game," and it's with older guys. So I feel even better, you know, because they see the potential, you know.

NOEY: What's the best way to be successful?

MAURICIO: One thing I would say is just, it's gonna require sacrifice. But what, another thing I'd say is, it's so worth it. You know, high schools only four years, it's important to join everything. And, you know, that's why, when I came, I saw basketball as a lifetime opportunity, you know, especially high school You know, you never get those years back. So I recommend to other students to take the chance, always be grateful for the opportunities you have. Let's say one person doesn't wanna do it because they feel they're not gonna be good enough. With hard work, man, you never know what's gonna happen. You can be, you could be, like one of the top five players, you know. You never know until you try.

“I love that my car’s an older model and it has low miles on it and it would last me another lifetime. It has a lot of sentimental value to me because it went through some of my older aunts before it became my car. I love working on it when I’m bored, and I want to end up making it 100 times cooler then it already is.”
